Commonwealth Games

Linda Szulga: bronze medalist

by Jerry Grozelle

Competing in the Commonwealth Games in Victoria, British Columbia was a "fabulous experience" for Linda Szulga of Burnt River. "It was incredible," she said.

Szulga competed in the women's smallbore prone shooting events, both individually and paired with Christina Ashcroft, a former Waterloo, Ontario resident who now lives on the military base in Comox, B.C. with her husband.

The pair won a bronze medal on the first day of the competition.

The Australian duo won the gold medal with an aggregate score of 1160 out of a possible 1200. Scotland and Canada tied with 1158 points each but the way the rules were set up, Szulga and Ashcroft had to settle for the bronze.

Szulga is very proud of the entire 21-member Canadian shooting team. The host country's shooting contingent won more medals than any other nation in the shooting sports and the Canadian shooters earned more medals than any other sport in which Canadian teams competed. They won a total of 22 medals — eight gold, seven silver and seven bronze. Ten of the medals were from pairs competitions and 12 were individual medals.

The shooting competitions included smallbore rifle, fullbore rifle, pistol and shotgun events.

The wind conditions throughout the shooting competitions added a variable with which all of the shooters had to contend.

Szulga said that she shot five to six points below her normal level because of the wind. One of the range officers from the British Columbia facility admitted that the wind conditions were the worst he had ever seen.

Bronze medalist: Linda Szulga of Burnt River teamed up with Christina Ashcroft to earn a bronze medal for Canada.

My job in the pairs competition was to beat all of the second place shooters, and I did that," Szulga said, adding that she was happy with the way she shot. "I was completely calm. I felt good."

Ashcroft had one more variable to consider that the other competitors didn't have. She was four and a half months pregnant during the Commonwealth Games. A combination of the wind conditions and her pregnancy had a negative effect on Ashcroft's scores as well.

"She's capable of eight to 10 points better at any of the prone events that she shot," Szulga said.

Prince Philip presented the medals to the shooters on the first

Riding the rapids! Paddlers Gary and Joan McGuffin test out the raging white water rapids at the Minden Wild Water Preserve. They will be at the rapids this week taking photos for their technical book about canoeing

Paddlers capture challenge of white water paddling for book

By Kelly Pettinger

If you're near the Minden Wild Water preserve on Horseshoe Lake Road One any time this week, don't be surprised if you see Joan and Gary McGuffin, the famous duo who in 1983-84 canoed across Canada, and in 1986 repeated the trek on bicycles.

Their latest challenge is the foaming water of the Gull River where they are testing different manoeuvres and taking photographs for a technical book they are writing on canoeing.

Gary said they want to stress how important safety equipment is when canoeing on white water. "I saw a guy come down these rapids in a regular canoe without a helmet. That is very dangerous. Paddling white water is not like an average flat water canoe trip. For his own safety, he should have been wearing a helmet," he said.

The McGuffins hope their book will demonstrate the proper use of buoyancy air bags, paddling manoeuvres utilizing different types of paddles, boat control and returning safely to the eddies (the calmer parts of the river). "Most people think a canoe like this, which has the air bags, is ahead of its time. But for professionals, it's perfect and adds to the fun," said Gary.

"We really want to get more people interested in canoeing and we want to show them that this is a great way to relax and be independent. We also want to demonstrate that the sport is not as difficult as some people think. We are trying to show how to make the sport easier so everyone can do it," said Gary.

A book about their 2,500 mile canoe trip around Lake Superior, taken a few years ago, is currently undergoing its second editing. It contains numerous photographs illustrating the beauty of the Lake Superior area. The book will be called Superior Journeys on an Inland Sea and will likely be in stores by Christmas 1995.

"When we went on the trans-Canada canoe trip back in 83-84, we knew that it would be a great way to see most of Canada," said Gary.

"Two years later we decided to bike across Canada. We had a lot of support and people were really interested in what we were doing. We started at the most westerly point in Canada in minus 40 degrees temperatures, so we could bike across the ice. We took about five months to get to the most easterly point in Newfoundland," said Gary.

"The book we are working on now is all but written. The opening is done, and an explanation of what we will be demonstrating throughout the book is finished. What remains is basically the photos," said Gary.

The McGuffins were in Minden last week and are here until Friday. "We love this community. It is a great place to be," said Joan. "The other night we went to the Beaver Theatre and it was great. We've been walking everywhere here. Where we live, there really isn't anyplace to walk at night, so it was nice to be able to get out and see everything Minden has to offer."

Two more big winners in the Lions Luxury Draw recently received their rewards. Wayne Johnson received $1,000 in lieu of gas or oil vouchers for his first prize in the August Draw. John Macklem won $500 as the second prize.

Slaughtered pets found at dump

A grizzly find at the Little Gull dump has Lutterworth Township Reeve Jim McMahon seeing red.

A bag filled with dead puppies and another full of kittens were discovered by the landfill attendant last Wednesday. Each of the nine puppies had been struck on the back of the head, stuffed in a garbage bag and tossed over the dump gate. The other bag contained four dead kittens and one that was barely clinging to life.

The one live kitten is the only reason these animals were discovered, says McMahon. The landfill attendant picked up the bags and was prepared to throw them into the dump when he heard the kitten.

A three-week-old white Persian kitten is the sole survivor. It was taken to the Minden Animal Clinic to be treated for severe dehydration and an infestation of ticks.

It is against the law to dispose of dead animals at landfill sites. Reeve McMahon says the township is hoping someone will have information to help identify the person who dumped these animals.

The puppies were Redbone and Shepherd crosses. The kittens were all white Persians. Anyone with information is asked to contact By-law Enforcement Officer Ernie Hills at the Lutterworth office.

All-candidates meeting attracts 50 ratepayers

by Kelly Pettinger

Although the municipal election is not until November, some candidates have already started campaigning. Flyers stating the familiar "Vote for Me" format have already been seen in Anson, Hindon and Minden townships.

While other townships are still waiting for candidates to come forward, the hopefuls in the Anson, Hindon and Minden races have already had their first public all-candidates meeting on August 27.

The early meeting was held with the hope of attracting seasonal taxpayers and voters who usually don't have the chance to meet the candidates. Both Reeve Bern Berry and Councillor Jeanne Anthon are running for reeve, Deputy Reeve Lewis Stevens is seeking re-election and Councillors Grant Plooard and Gerry Rome are hoping to keep their positions on council.

About 50 permanent and seasonal residents came out in spite of the sunny weather to hear campaign speeches from the candidates. Representatives from the Lake Kashagawigamog, Soyers Lake and Horse-shoe Lake property owners associations attended the meeting to gather information for their members.

The candidates each gave a prepared speech and then answered two questions from audience members.

In her speech, Anthon said if she was elected she would be ready to make necessary changes in the community. "As reeve, I will encourage council to form an economic development committee comprised of business leaders of this community. With their skills and council's co-operation, this municipality can provide good jobs, a sound economic future and a broader tax base. But you need people who are willing to devote special time and dedication to economic development - council can't do it alone. With the help of the leaders of this municipality, and firm goals, it can be done. I will work hard to make sure it does happen," said Anthon.

In response, Berry said that he will continue his open door approach and will cooperate with all residents, councillors, staff and press. "I feel, the experience I have gained will help me assess any new program or service that may be requested at both the municipal and county levels, for its true value. Any new program or service to be instituted, must be looked at closely for need, value, and affordability. To institute new services or programs with our limited resources, an increase in taxes or reduction in other service areas is inevitable. We must live within our means," he said.

During the question period, one woman asked Berry if he had any future plans for some type of recreational activities for children and young adults. Berry said there were no specific plans, but would be happy to take any suggestions. Plooard spoke on the subject and said there have been attempts made in the past to provide activities for children.

Taxpayers want changes made to Anson, Hindon and Minden

"I am on the Recreational Committee and we have tried before to give the children in Minden something to do. We have had dances and other functions, but there has been little attendance," said Plooard.

Another woman asked the candidates if there is anything the council can do about the fire routes in the township. She said her cottage on Kashawgamog Lake is located in Anson, Hindon and Minden township, but she is closer to Dysart. She asked if the boundaries would be changed according to distance instead of political boundaries.

Plooard, who is on the Fire Department, said there are being studies done to figure out how such changes could be made.

The question of amalgamating the 10 municipalities into four was brought up, and Berry, Anthon, and Lewis all agreed it would be a good thing for Haliburton County.

"We can do a lot more sharing of staff, equipment and purchases. We do a certain amount of that already and I believe we can do a lot more," said Anthon.

Although there are no candidates declared for positions on the Board of Education, Trustee Wendy Ladurantaye agreed to discuss some issues with the audience. She did not make a speech as she is not sure if she will be running.

She encouraged the taxpayers to speak out against rising education taxes. She said the rise in taxes is caused by decreasing provincial grants. The grants are based on property values which supposedly have increased since 1988. But she does not believe property values have increased in the past six years.

Ladurantaye asked property owners to contact her if they know of properties that have sold for less or the same amount, based on 1988 figures, recently. She said she will gather the information she receives and present it to the province.

Gord Monk:

Happy to be helping every day

People Who
Make a Difference

by Kelly Pettinger

Almost every day he has to deal with death, grief, mourning and sadness. Often at unusual hours, he helps people cope with the loss of a loved one, listens when people need to talk, or counsels those who are suddenly faced with the emotional stress which accompanies the death of a family member or friend.

Gord Monk, funeral director and owner of the Monk Funeral Home, does not lead what many would consider to be a average working life. The nine-to-five routine, which most people take for granted, is just not in the job description. Often his work will stretch into an 18 hour day.

"It's part of the service we provide. Often people will drop in early in the morning to talk about their problems. Whether it be about the loss of a loved one, questions about financial matters, or just the ordeal of planning a funeral, I am here to listen. It is part of the job, but I also want people to feel welcome here.

We do welcome people with open arms," said Monk.

Monk hadn't always wanted to be in the funeral business. When he was a high school student he desperately wanted to go into medicine. Unfortunately, medical school was beyond his reach financially.

"The funeral director in the town where I lived asked me if I wanted to come and work for him. It wasn't your everyday summer job for a teenager, but it was really interesting," said Monk.

He said he was not nervous about seeing a dead body; instead he found it intriguing. "I was fascinated with the human body, so when it came time for embalming, I was right there watching up. I was always interested in biology, and I guess not being able to go on to medical school I was getting the next-best education," said Monk.

"Most people don't understand why we have to embalm the body. They think we are trying to make the person look better than when they were alive, but that is not true. We embalm the bodies because of viruses. Even though the body is not living, the viruses still are. People think I should be really careful with people who died of AIDS, but to tell you the truth, Hepatitis B is a greater concern. With AIDS, the disease is contracted through the contact of blood only. With Hepatitis B, no one is sure yet how it can be contracted. We are just careful," said Monk.

Working at a variety of funeral homes in the Three Generations: Gord Monk, his wife Donna, daughter Kirsten and her husband Barry and son Alex always greet visitors with a welcoming smiles to anybody who visits them province, Monk learned a great deal about how people cope with death and the important service funeral homes provide.

"The emotions that surface at a funeral are not always the same. Of course, there is a lot of sadness, but sometimes there is anger, shock, and sometimes even joy," he said.

In 1961, Monk met his wife Donna in Toronto. They moved to Collingwood a short time later. In 1975 Monk decided he wanted to buy his own funeral home and began looking for businesses which were for sale. There were two on the market, one in Kingston and the other in Minden. "I had only been to Minden once before, so I came again to see what it was like. I talked with people and I decided I really wanted to live here. I went home and told the family we were moving to Minden," said Monk.

And how did the family take to the move? "Well Kirsten was about 10, and she was sure she would never see her friends again. Cameron was about 12 and he didn't seem to mind," said Monk.

It was Donna who wasn't so sure about the move. "I wasn't too thrilled because I liked the city so much. But after we settled in, I knew I wouldn't go back to the city. Minden's a great place to be," she said.

Asked whether the children had any problems adjusting to life next to a funeral home Monk replied, "For the longest time Kirsten would do anything for the funeral service and around the home, except go into the preparation room. She was pretty frightened. Cameron, being a boy, didn't mind at all," he said.

Monk is obviously proud that both his children have chosen to be a part of the profession. They both went to Humber, and are presently working for their father. "Kirsten and her husband Barry Cray help me here in Minden, and Cameron and his wife Liz run our funeral home in Bobcaygeon. It is wonderful to have the family all working together. Both my children are very professional and work hard at what they do," said Monk.

Monk said his job can be heartbreaking at times, and knows it is alright to feel this way. "People still think that a funeral director is a cold-hearted man with a grim face who stands stiffly at the back of the room. That is not how it is or should be. People don't want to see someone so grim; it only makes them feel worse about the funeral. I went to my first funeral when I was fourteen and it was awful. I had never felt so terrible in my entire life and I vowed I would never do that to my children. Over the years funeral directors have come to realize that this is a part of life, and our job is to make the family feel at home and comfort them of needed. With every funeral, a piece of you goes with it," said Monk.

Although a funeral can be distressing, sometimes a person can't help but laugh away the tears. Monk recalls one time as they were lowering the casket into the ground, he stepped back and fell into another open grave. "It was embarrassing, but the family got a good laugh. Another time, we had a funeral right after a heavy snowfall, and when we were lifting the casket I did the splits and ripped my pants. Yet another embarrassing time," laughed Monk.

Monk said it was times like those that perhaps broke the ice, and the family felt better about the burial and funeral. "It's a good feeling to see a family leave the home with their feelings resolved over the loss of a loved one...still sad, of course, but able to cope and get on with their lives," said Monk.

Monk feels that some people think funerals are expensive and the prices are unreasonable. However when the hours of labour are divided into the cost he says it works out to about $12 per hour. "That's what many people make in an office or computer job. If I was in this business for the money, I would have quit years ago. I just want to help people. I don't want to be rich, just happy," he said.

Even though he has a busy schedule, Monk finds time for the K-40 Club and the Masonic Lodge, and at Christmas he helps out Santa Claus by making a number of costumed appearances for the jolly old man at various children's functions. "I love kids and it is a lot of fun. Some people ask how much I charge for my Santa role. I don't. It's something I do for free, because that's how it should be. It's like the counselling I do. I don't charge a fee for counselling because the family has been through enough without having to pay another fee. I just want to help," he said.

Hut licencing

This week we received an interesting suggestion in regard to the lake trout management issue — a suggestion that we believe is worthy of consideration.

Instead of implementing a complete ban on ice fishing on lakes throughout the region, why not put a limit on the number of fishing huts? The idea, as presented to us, is to hold a raffle — similar to the tag draws for deer and moose.

Ice fishing would only be allowed from these licenced huts and the Ministry of Natural Resources would have control over the number of huts permitted on each lake.

By licencing huts and limiting their number, the ministry would be in a position to monitor the number of fish caught in each of the lakes and anglers would still have some potential for enjoying their sport. A further benefit is that bait and tackle shops, outfitters, resorts and other related businesses would not lose all of the trade that is linked to ice fishing.

If the ministry is reluctant to take on the bureaucracy of a licence draw, this job could potentially be turned over to a group such as the Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association, which could use it as a fundraising venture.

The ministry is trying to limit the number of fish taken from area lakes in hopes of preserving lake and brook trout populations. The option of closing the ice fishing season, however, has understandably drawn a great deal of flack from those who enjoy the sport.

The raffle option provides a middle ground. It reduces the harvest without having to introduce a complete ban, which many seem to find so onerous. For this reason, we feel it deserves consideration by the ministry and by the HHOA.

Omission

In last week's listing of candidates who are running for office in the municipal elections, we missed a few.

-Ray Lymer will be seeking a second term as a councillor in Snowdon Township.

-Leon Jones will be seeking election as councillor for Ward 4 in Dysart.

Watch for weekly updates as new candidates announce their intentions.

Doctors give home clean bill of health

Editor,

With regard to the recent correspondence regarding Hyland Crest, we would like to take this opportunity to mention that the residents of Hyland Crest are looked after exceptionally well in every way. Firstly, they are in a beautiful residence with a charming view. Secondly, they are looked after by qualified R.N.s and R.N.As and Health Care Aids, who work tirelessly and with great dedication, day after day, week after week, month after month and year after year.

It should be noted that residents of Hyland Crest do not have to worry about cleaning, shopping, preparing meals, or about their medical condition. Entertainment is provided, and outings are arranged on the Hyland Crest bus. Extra help is provided by volunteers.

Certainly we have encountered in many years' service at Hyland Crest no evidence of any physical or other abuse. In summary, we feel that the standard of care at Hyland Crest is of the highest order.

Earning a very cool grand in Polaris

Went to a rich guy's party last night. Very nice, I suppose. Phoneys by the yard. Champagne by the bucket. Shrimp dip all over the place, like ashtrays in a bingo hall. But it got me to thinking — hey, this guy's strictly nouveau. A carpetbagger. Where do you live if you're really, really in the bucks?

I'd always heard Rosedale — that maple leafed enclave in deepest, darkest Hogtown. Rosedale is a district — a back yard really — about three rapes and a plunder north of the nucleus of downtown Toronto — which is to say Yonge and Dundas. You get no junkies in Rosedale. No panhandlers with dirty mouths or running sores. No street gangs. No hookers or beggars or winos.

Rosedale is mercifully free of all such . . . distractions.

And, not surprisingly, Rosedale is rather wealthy. Turns out that in 1992, your average Rosedale resident took home $48,000. It may not sound exactly princely, but it is about two and a half times above the national average of $18,600.

Is anybody, anywhere in Canada, still able to live on an income of $18,600 a year? If so, I'd love to hear from them. Write this paper, wouldja?

Meanwhile . . . the cost of living. I checked the Guinness Book of Records and discovered that, well-heeled as it is, Rosedale isn't even in the top 10 globe-wise.

According to Guinness, the riches country in the world is Switzerland. Canada is not even in the top 10.

But don't feel hard done by. You could live in Mozambique. The poor wretches of that African hellhole hold the title of world's poorest country. Average income per person: $70.

A year.

But the Guinness Book of Records is strangely incomplete. It doesn't give a rating for Brunei, an eensy-teeny flyspeck of a nation perched on the north coast of the island of Borneo.

I'm not sure what the annual income of your average Bruneian is, but I know there's only about a quarter million of them, and I know their boss, the Sultan of Brunei, is officially worth about $37 billion, give or take a nickel.

Something tells me it's better to be a poor man in Brunei than a poor man in Berne.

And another oversight in the Guinness Book of Records — not a word about Polaris.

Perhaps you've never been there.

Almost certainly you've never been there. Polaris is a tiny, hardscrabble settlement on the edge of Little Cornwallis Island, which is 100 kilometres from the north magnetic pole. Just 200 people live in Polaris, all of them dedicated to hauling as much lead and zinc as they can out of the frozen ground for their employers, Cominco Ltd.

and Teck Corporation, of Vancouver.

It's not a glamorous life. Polaris is about as barren a spot as you could find on the planet. For 10 months of the year, the landscape is pure, unrelieved white.

Of course there are no night clubs, no Sky or Saddle domes.

And Polaris is somewhat off the beaten track.

The Blue Jays, the Vancouver Canucks and the National Ballet hardly ever pass through town.

The work schedule is brutal too. Employees are expected to work 11 hours a day, six days a week.

But there's an up side.

Free room and board and catered meals — you never have to cook — and, oh yes . . . time off.

Four months — yes, months — paid vacation every year. And a very healthy salary to boot.

The average — average — income in Polaris is $92,800.

And now just in case you're packing a haversack, heading for the highway and pointing your thumb due north — another down side to working at Polaris.

The waiting list.

"It's a mile long" says mine manager John Key. "Recently we had one job opening for a power house mechanic. It drew 92 applications."

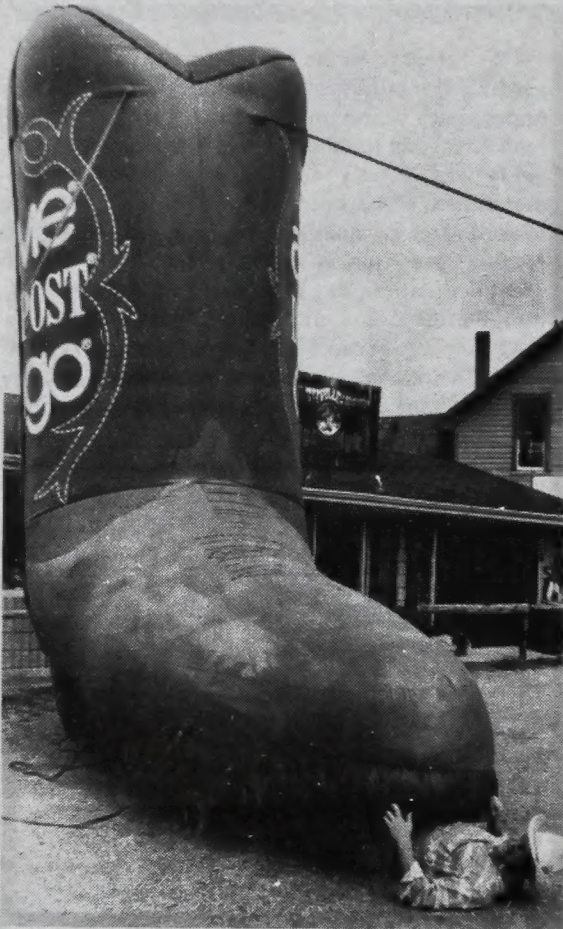

Oh, well. I never liked long winters anyway.

RATTLIN' CREEK

Of note recently is the addition of the well-known line of Fender guitars and musical accessories at the Rattlin' Creek Music store in Haliburton. The store is now an authorized dealer and in addition to guitars carries amps, parts and accessories. Proprietors Paul and Helen Brohm have also added Boss brand guitar effects pedals to their line, along with an expanded display of CDs and tapes.

THIS BOOT IS MADE FOR WALKING.....

Dale Merrill found the pressure of work a little intense outside his Nashville North Trading Company store in Minden last week. However, it wasn't quite as sole-searching as it might first appear. The western wear retailer had a giant inflatable cowboy boot outside his store as part of the Labour Day weekend promotion.

With scissors in hand, Richard Milewski does the honours as he cuts the ribbon to mark the official opening of the R & W European bakery on Minden's Main Street. The opening of the new business attracted a large crowd of well-wishers including, from the left, Anson, Hindon and Minden Councillors Jean Anthon and Grant Plooard, Richard's daughter Eva, Deputy Reeve Lewis Stevens, Richard's wife Wanda and their two children Robert and Adam, bakery employee Hanna Casper, Richard, Haliburton County Warden Jim McMahon, Richard's mother, partially hidden, Christine, Reeve Bern Berry and Richard's daughter Yvonne. The bakery has a retail outlet which has been very busy since the opening and has wholesale contracts with retail outlets, grocery stores, restaurants, lodges and resorts throughout the area and as far away as Lindsay. Two trucks deliver the freshly baked goods to the wholesale outlets. The new operation is so busy that Milewski has hired a second baker from Europe who is scheduled to begin work this week.

Cyclist rides 7,000 miles a year

by Jerry Grozelle

An average of 7,000 miles a year doesn't sound very impressive — unless those 7,000 miles are logged on a bicycle. That's how many miles Irving Nevitt has averaged over the past three years.

The 60-year-old Hamilton native, who has a cottage on Big Bob Lake, is a familiar sight along the back roads of Haliburton County. To him, a typical short ride is 25 miles. When he is riding competitively, he will often ride 110 or more miles in a day.

Nevitt has been known to ride his bike from Hamilton to the cottage; a distance of more than 180 miles.

"It takes me about eight and a half hours," he said.

His wife Marge drives the "sag wagon", just in case he runs into problems and can't finish the ride.

Nevitt started bicycle riding at about 15 years of age.

"I wasn't allowed to have a bike before that," he explained. "I had rheumatic fever."

In his early years, Nevitt would often ride his bicycle from Hamilton to the YMCA camp at Port Ryerse—a distance of 52 miles; or to Niagara Falls, a 55-mile ride.

"I used to use a bike for transportation — to school, to university and to work," he said. "That was long before biking to work was the rage."

Nevitt retired from Stelco Steel in Hamilton in January of this year. He has three friends from Stelco who share the same passion for bike riding. The four men have teamed up to ride competitively in several long distance races.

One of the most challenging of those rides is the Scioto River Valley event from Columbus, Ohio to Portsmouth. The four men ride together on that 110 mile course and for the past five years they have collectively finished in the top five. To add some perspective, a total of 6,500 riders take part in the event. About 50 to 60 of those riders are Canadians.

"We typically average about 22 miles an hour," Nevitt said. "It takes about five hours to complete the course."

You might think that after a grueling five-hour effort, the competitors would pack their bikes into their cars and drive back to Columbus. But the next day, they get an early start and ride their bikes the 110 miles back to the starting point.

The Ohio event is held on the Mothers Day Weekend, so the Canadian competitors are at a disadvantage.

"Most of the riders from the States ride most of the winter," he said. "Because of the weather, we usually only get six or seven weeks to train."

Nevitt is the eldest of the four-man team. Two of the men are 45 years old and one is 50.

This month, the four cyclists are going to Vermont. Their goal is to ride four mountain passes (gaps) in one day. The most challenging of the four passes is Lincoln Gap. Nevitt says Lincoln Gap is so steep that in places it is difficult to walk, let alone ride a bike.

A cycle club in Vermont has a gold crest that it presents to anyone who rides the four gaps in one day. The total distance is 110 miles.

In Haliburton County, Nevitt has several routes he travels. One of the courses follows Horseshoe Lake Road around the loop from the south entrance on Highway 35 to the north and back down the highway. Counting the distance from the cottage to Horseshoe Lake Road and back, the distance is about 25 miles.

"It's really enjoyable riding in this area," Nevitt said. "When I'm up here, there are all kinds of interesting places to ride. The Haliburton countryside is beautiful."

He says the long hill on Scotch Line Road is among the best challenges in the area.

Nevitt says that the bikes his friends ride are in the $2,000 to $3,000 price range. He rides a $600 Miele bicycle on his road excursions. His mountain bike is a Fischer, worth about $1,000.

"I kid the guys that it is the engine that drives the bike that really counts," he said.

His wife has a mountain bike but she says that she keeps to much shorter rides than her husband.

"I could never keep up with him," she admits.

The Nevitts took a trip to the Yukon earlier this summer. Irving had planned to do some riding there but after just one ride he came down with pneumonia, curtailing his cycling activities for the remainder of the trip. He says he still feels the effects of the illness.

"It's the only thing that's ever held him back," Marge said.

Bike riding for Irving Nevitt is not a highly competitive sport that has monetary rewards. Even the long distance rides like the one in Ohio are not for prizes; they are for the satisfaction of achieving personal best times.

"It's for recreation, fitness and friendship with the guys I ride with," he said.

Commonwealth Games "fabulous" experience for Burnt River shooter day of the competition and as it turned out, Szulga was positioned beside the Prince during the wait before the medals were presented. She had an opportunity to talk with him for several minutes.

"He was very chatty and sociable," she said.

Vancouver was the staging area for the athletes. That's where they were outfitted with their uniforms for the games. Then, the entire Canadian team went on an extended ferry ride across to Vancouver Island. The voyage, which usually takes little more than an hour, lasted four hours.

"We got a really warm welcome," Szulga said. "All the boats we met cheered and waved Canadian flags."

When they docked at Victoria, the athletes went to the Parliament Buildings where they were officially welcomed.

Some of the athletes, Szulga included, went from there to the opening of the Labatt International Pin Trading Centre.

"Pin trading is a very big deal," Szulga said.

One of the lapel pins she brought back was a Commonwealth Games pin that depicts a killer whale holding a rifle, with Victoria 94 printed above it.

"Trading pins is a great way to meet people," Szulga said. "We like to trade pins with other shooters."

The group was then taken to the athletes' village, which was set up at the University of Victoria.

Szulga said she was impressed with the security at the residence complex. It wasn't overbearing yet she says she felt confident and comfortable while she was there.

"It was just the right amount of security," she said.

Szulga went to the same range for a competition earlier in the summer and she says she was glad she had some experience at that range.

During the badge matches, which were practice for the shooters as well as a warm-up for officials, Szulga shot a personal best score of 584 out of 600.

During her 19-day stay in Victoria, Szulga was either shooting in competition or training on eight of those days. The rest of the time she had the opportunity to explore the area.

"The people of Victoria were very hospitable everywhere we went," Szulga said.

She had the chance to tour Butchart Gardens, which is "five acres of incredibly beautiful floral gardens."

She also went deep sea fishing with several other members of the shooting team. Although she didn't catch anything but a few "shakers", they did happen upon a pod of at least six killer whales. The boats followed the whales, which were the symbol of the games, giving everyone a good look at the orcas.

The B.C. Museum was another highlight of the trip for Szulga.

She had some good luck and some bad luck while she was there. The bad luck was catching one of two viruses that were going around. It put her out of commission for about 40 hours, most of which, she spent sleeping.

The good luck was the fact that the illness struck during her off time, between the pairs and the individual competitions.

Another bit of bad luck may have cost her a shot at an individual medal. Just before she started the individual competition, a well-wisher tapped Szulga on the shoulder, wishing her good luck. Unfortunately, it was her left shoulder. That is the shoulder she has been working on for three years in an attempt to recover from a torn rotator cuff.

"I shot the first three strings very well," she said. "But by the time I got to the fourth string, I was running out of time and the pain was so intense that I could hardly hold the rifle up."

Szulga was in the running for a medal after the third string of shots but the fourth string ended any hopes of an individual medal.

Szulga had some special words of praise for the 15,000 volunteers who helped with the Commonwealth Games.

"They bent over backwards to make sure that everything ran smoothly," she said. "We thought they were fabulous. They treated us royally."

Szulga will remember the closing ceremonies fondly. She said that all of the athletes got a hearty round of applause when they entered the stadium.

"But, when we (the Canadian athletes) walked in, the stadium absolutely exploded."

On the podium: Linda Szulga (right) and Christina Ashcroft celebrate their bronze medal in Victoria.

Mills returns as bantam coach

by Jerry Grozelle

Dan Mills has set a goal for himself and he seems determined to achieve that goal. He wants to coach a hockey team to an all-Ontario championship.

Mills has come close to that dream on a few occasions. The closest was last year when he led the Minden Monarchs bantam A team to the all-Ontario semifinals.

"We were one goal away from going to the finals," he said in retrospect.

But close only counts in horseshoes and hand grenades and close isn't good enough for this coach's hockey team.

"I have a lot of hope for the coming season," Mills said. "We will have some decent talent. I'm really looking forward to it."

Mills has coached for 10 years, although not consecutively. He started in 1972, with a bantam house league team in Coldwater, Ontario.

That first year, he said that his team didn't win a game over the regular season. He made arrangements for some extra practice time before the playoffs got started and his team rebounded to win the division championship.

After two years coaching in the house league, Mills spent three years coaching OMHA teams — one with the Coldwater midgets and two with the juveniles.

All three of those seasons saw his teams advance to the all-Ontario playdowns. One of those seasons, he recalls (1977-78), his team was knocked out by the Minden juvenile squad.

Twice during his coaching days in Coldwater he was honoured as coach of the year.

"I was flabbergasted the first time," he said.

After a 10-year hiatus, Mills was back behind the bench coaching peewee and bantam house league teams from 1988 to 1991.

The Mills family moved to the Minden area in 1991 and last season was his first at the helm of an OMHA team in 15 years.

Dan will be coaching the Minden bantam team again this year. His son Darren will be playing for the bantam team and another son, Ritchie, will help out as trainer.

His assistant coach and team manager have yet to be chosen.

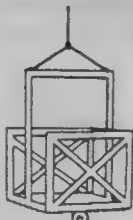

Mills said that the biggest assets of a winning team are desire and setting a goal.

He knows what his goal is.

Aiming high: Bantam coach Dan Mills has his sights set on all-Ontario championship.

Chris Mitchell lands mounds of bass

submitted by Liz Mitchell

The Horseshoe Lake Kids' Rock Bass Derby was held on August 14. This one-day family event had registration at 9 a.m. followed by frantic fishing until the 2 p.m. weigh-in.

A good turnout (46 participants) led to competitive results in all age categories. Matthew Antilla won for 5 and under. Chris Mitchell took the honours for 6 and 7 year olds and was the overall weight champion with an individual haul of 11 pounds, 11 ounces. Clayton O'Halloran led the 8 and 9 year olds. Jeffrey Antilla won the 10 and 11 year old category. Robert McClatchy won the 12 and 13 year old category, and Gavin McElwain was tops in the 14 and over category.

The largest rock bass was caught by Clayton O'Halloran and the smallest was caught by Eric Stone. All competitors received prizes provided by the many sponsors. Special thanks to Douglas Kurtin (Berkeley), Gordon Monk, and Minden Live Bait and Tackle.

Weigh-in and prize presentations were at the Mitchell Cottage. We look forward to seeing everyone back next year when we take a run at the "rockies" in '95.

Firemen honoured: Five founding members of the Laxton, Digby and Longford Fire Department were honoured for their contributions to the municipality, at a special ceremony at the fire hall in Norland on August 28. They are, kneeling (l to r) John LeCraw, Vernon LeCraw and Chris Batty. Standing: Fire Chief Jim Boyce (left) and Jim Brown. The LDL fire department was established in 1973.

Laxton honours Fire Dept. founders

Five members of the Laxton, Digby and Longford Volunteer Fire Department were honoured at a special ceremony August 28, at the fire hall in Norland. All five men were founding members of the LDL Fire Department, helping to get the brigade started in the early spring of 1973.

Two of the honourees have served as Fire Chief. Jim Brown was the first Chief and Jim Boyce is the current Chief. John LeCraw, Chris Batty and Vernon LeCraw, along with Brown and Boyce were presented with plaques of appreciation by the council of the Townships of Laxton, Digby and Longford.

The inscription on the plaques reads, in part: "...in recognition of dedicated and tireless energy devoted to the Laxton, Digby and Longford Fire Department -- a man who gave his all from the beginning to a service that was and always will be greatly needed in our area. In appreciation from the Council of LDL."

A framed commemorative plaque holding pictures of the five men, was unveiled during the ceremonies. It will hang in the training room of the fire hall in Nor-land for a few weeks and then be transferred to the municipal council chambers.

Deputy-Reeve of the municipality Mike Riordon presented the plaques. He commended the five men for their service and dedication and pointed out to the audience that all of the firefighters in the community are volunteers.

The municipality boasts a volunteer fire department of 19 men, including the dispatcher. They answer an average of 30 calls each year. So far this fiscal year (since December 1, 1993) the LDL Fire Department has answered 23 calls.

LDL has fire protection agreements with Somerville and Lutterworth Townships and provides mutual aid to all of Victoria County as well as Galway-Cavendish Townships in Peterborough County.

All members of LDL Council were in attendance as was Victoria County Warden Ken Logan.

As well, Mike Hutton, Lindsay Fire Chief and County Fire Co-ordinator called on the radio to offer his congratulations.

Credit union will be considered for Highlands

Next week, businesses and individuals in Haliburton County will have an opportunity to consider an alternative to existing banking services.

The Haliburton County Development Corporation is hosting two public meetings to explain the potential benefits of a credit union.

According to Andy Campbell, the manager of the Development Corporation, the meetings are a result of concerns raised by area residents over the past number of years. "In the past, some businesses have found it difficult dealing with the established banks," Campbell said. "Over the years, these people have asked if there were alternatives to the two commercial banking services in Minden and Haliburton. They have suggested we look into the benefits of having a credit union here." At least one economic study of the region also suggested that the benefits of a credit union for the area should be examined.

At the moment, both Minden and Haliburton have a CIBC branch, with a Toronto Dominion Bank branch located in Minden and a Bank of Montreal branch in Haliburton.

Campbell said recent changes in the provincial banking legislation, which governs the operation of credit unions, has been broadened to allow them to provide most of the same services provided by chartered banks.

He spoke with officials of the Kawartha Credit Union a number of years ago but did not receive an enthusiastic response from them about expanding into the Haliburton County market. However, officials at the Parry Sound-Muskoka Credit Union expressed an interest. Representatives of this credit union will be in attendance to answer questions and explain the services which can be offered.

According to Campbell, credit unions provide services similar to those available through chartered banks, for both individuals and businesses. He said depositors own shares in the credit union. Membership costs $100, and allows them to vote for the board of directors at the organization's annual meeting. Campbell noted that credit unions not only appeal to businesses, but also to individual depositors, especially seniors, are attracted by the more competitive rates a credit union can offer.

The Parry Sound Muskoka Credit Union has been in operation for 42 years and has five branches throughout that part of Ontario. While the board of directors sets the policy and oversees the general operation of the credit union, the day to day management is handled by a chief executive officer and staff. The CEO and a vice president of the Parry Sound Muskoka Credit Union will be the representatives who will be addressing the meetings.

"The purpose of the meetings will be to determine if there is enough interest in the county to support the opening of offices here," Campbell said. Two meetings have been scheduled. The first is in Minden, Wednesday September 14 at the Community Centre, the second is on Thursday September 15 at the Haliburton Legion. Both meetings are scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. The organizers have requested that individuals let the organizers know if they are planning to attend by calling 457-3555.

Don't be conned by pushy telephone salespeople

What should you do if you suspect that someone has picked you as a likely target for telephone fraud?

Remember that not everyone calling about promotions or so-called investments is trustworthy.

Don't be tricked by promises of a valuable prize in return for what seems like an inexpensive purchase or fee.

Always check out the product, the investment and the company before you buy or invest. Use reliable sources of information (the Better Business Bureau for example).

Don't be pressured into giving your credit card number or card expiry date over the phone.

Most importantly, don't be afraid to hang up.

Many service agencies in Haliburton County require the assistance of volunteers to help run their programs on a continuing basis or short term for special projects. If you have time to spare and would like to help, call the Haliburton County Information Centre.

A hard question to answer

A few weeks ago, I was asked for a list of the top five concrete things people can do to save the environment. It would be easy to trot out the 3-R slogan — Reduce, reuse and recycle — to advise people to walk more and drive less, reduce garbage output, to avoid disposable products when reusables exist, and so on.

But when we attempt to grapple with the unprecedented explosion in human numbers, technology and consumption that are negatively altering the planet, it's not that simple.

We have no historical precedents to guide us, so we end up trying to prop up our existing institutions and programs, making them more efficient and less destructive, yet they are often the destructive agents. If we're serious about trying to reduce our destruction of the environment, there's still a lot of thinking to do first.

The real changes needed have to do with our personal values and beliefs and they are hard to change. Perhaps the most important requirement is the recognition that the ecological crisis is real, global and getting worse. The easiest way to corroborate this is to talk to anyone who is over 50 years old about the kind of environment he or she remembers as a child.

Night skies over cities once glittered with stars, there were local woods, marshes or creeks to play in, neighbourhoods were stable, disposability was not a consumer option, and the Amazon rainforest and Serengeti Plain were still intact. The world we once took for granted has been transformed in our lifetime. Project those kinds of changes into the future and it is obvious the world is not a better, more secure place for our children and grandchildren. Once convinced of the reality and seriousness of environmental degradation, we must examine our own values and define what our bottom lines really are.

What can we do to save the environment?

Short of a radical change in attitudes, there are no easy answers

Reflections

by David Suzuki

What are the things that we cannot compromise, that are critical to our survival and well being?

Let me suggest three categories of non-negotiable needs for everyone: biophysical, social and spiritual. The first group of necessities is vital to our physical survival and security as biological beings.

That includes an absolute requirement for clean air, pure water and uncontaminated soil to provide our nourishment. And the sum total of all physical features of the earth. Protection of air, water, soil and biodiversity should be vital in everything we do.

We have evolved as gregarious animals and so we have social needs that are critical for our mental and physical well-being that determines quality of life.

It is crucial to maintain stable communities with which we identify and belong and that requires the opportunity for full employment, guarantees of justice and a sense of security for ourselves and future generations.

Finally, we have a spiritual dimension that is critical to our sense of well being. I believe humans were not made to live in a world devoid of diversity and companionship of species.

Our evolutionary history records our emergence from a world teeming with plants and animals on which our survival depended. As more and more of the world's human population occupies a landscape we have created and dominate, we are increasingly estranged from our biological relatives, the other living creatures with whom we share so much of our genetic material and the earth. Is there a correlation between increasing violence, drugs, mental breakdown and other social problems and the disappearance of other species in our surroundings?

Pets are now routinely taken to hospital wards for people who are critically ill and to mental institutions and old age homes because people seem to have an inbuilt need for and response to other species.

The great Harvard biologist, E.O. Wilson, has called it Biophilia, a genetically based requirement to love living things including our own species. The opportunity to experience the vastness of nature, to know that there are forces beyond human comprehension and control, are further dimensions of our spiritual requirements.

If these are the bottom lines for whatever kind of society we want to live in, then we must try to identify the impediments to their protection and enhancement.

What are the personal beliefs and values that blind us to the consequences of what we are doing and deflect us from protecting the real necessities? Is the depletion of the ozone layer or toxic pollution a physical barrier? And what are the institutional obstacles built into politics and economics?

When we have identified the barriers, then it is essential to learn what makes people change their values and behaviour in a deep way. I'm afraid there is not simple prescription of five easy things to do. But then, no one said it was going to be easy.

IN MEMORIAM

MISCIO, Bernice & Alfred.
Bernice July 16, 1989. Alfred, September 2, 1989. In loving memory of Dad and Mom. God broke all our hearts to prove to us
He only takes the best.
And the best parents he did take from us
Time has passed since that sad day
When the ones we loved were taken away
God took them home, it was His will,
But in our hearts they will always be.
They were always there to guide you along
They were always there when you needed them
You could talk to them about anything.
What we would give if we could say
Hello Dad and Mom in the same old way;
To hear your voices, see your smiles,
To sit with you and chat awhile.
Nothing can be more precious
Than the memories we have of you both
To us you were so special
God must have thought so too
Your last parting wishes
We would like to have heard,
And whispered in your ears
We love and will miss you both
More than words can ever say
Our last parting words Dad and Mom
Wherever your spirits have taken you,
We wish you both peace and happiness together
And when old times we do recall,
It's then we miss you most of all.
In each one of us there is a part of you both
That no one can ever take from us.
We will Love and Miss you both.
Always in our hearts, Mike, Waneita, Tereasa, June, Tony, Dona and spouses and grandchildren.

Yours forever,
Johnny.
